Bodygraph

Overview

Type · Projector

A focused, penetrating aura that reads and guides others. Recognition and a genuine invitation are the keys to being seen and succeeding.

Focused and absorbing. The field penetrates deeply into one other person at a time and takes in how they work, which is why the attention feels intense and why recognition arrives unevenly.

Strategy · Wait for the invitation

Wait to be recognized and genuinely invited into the things that matter: relationships, career, and major commitments. Guidance offered without an invitation is not absorbed, and that wasted insight is what sours into bitterness.

Authority · Emotional

Decisions are made across an emotional wave rather than inside a moment. The defined Solar Plexus moves on its own rhythm between hope and pain, so no single moment carries the truth: clarity is what remains once the wave has run its course and settled toward neutral. The trap is committing at the peak, where enthusiasm reads as certainty, or at the trough, where gloom reads as insight, and treating any pressure to answer now as a reason to skip the wait.

Profile · 3/5

Personality line: 3 · Design line: 5

Martyr over Heretic. Conscious experimentation learns by collision, discovering what fails, and the unconscious fifth line turns that hard-won knowledge into practical solutions others project onto in advance. The competence is real, the expectations attached to it usually are not, so this role is trusted while it delivers and blamed the moment a projection breaks.

Martyr: learns through trial and error, discovering what does not work.

Heretic: a universalizing, practical force others project expectations onto.

Definition · Split

The defined centers fall into two groups with no channel between them, so energy is consistent inside each group and does not cross the divide. The gap is bridged by the gates other people carry, which is why particular company can make thinking suddenly feel joined up, and why that company is easily mistaken for completion rather than recognized as a temporary bridge. What the configuration needs is time for the two areas to synthesize and awareness of who is bridging them, not a rushed decision taken while the halves are still speaking separately.

Personality and Design

Personality

The conscious side, printed in black and calculated at the moment of birth. These activations are the mind and the sense of self: what the person recognizes as their own and can describe to someone else.

Design

The unconscious side, printed in red and calculated 88 degrees of solar arc before birth, roughly three months earlier. These activations run the body and are visible to other people long before the mind admits them.

Center readings

Head · Open

Amplifies the questions and mental pressure of others. Learns not to act on every inspiration that arrives.

Not-Self question: Is this question worth answering, and is it even mine? The open Head amplifies the mental pressure of others and spends itself resolving questions that do not matter to it.

Biology: The pineal gland. Its melatonin secretion governs the sleep and wake cycle, and in the bodygraph this gland is the source of the pressure to think.

Ajna · Open

Open mindedness and flexible thinking. Wisdom comes from holding many viewpoints without fixing on one belief.

Not-Self question: Is this certainty real, or is it a fixed opinion held in order to feel safe? The open Ajna pretends to be sure and defends beliefs it does not actually hold.

Biology: The pituitary gland, anterior and posterior. This master endocrine gland directs the other glands, and in the bodygraph it carries conceptual processing and mental awareness.

Throat · Defined

Consistent expression and the ability to manifest through speech and action when connected to a motor.

Not-Self question: Is all this talking and doing an attempt to attract attention? The open Throat fills the silence and stays busy to be noticed, rather than waiting to be recognized and asked.

Biology: The thyroid and parathyroid glands. Thyroid hormones set the metabolic rate and the parathyroids regulate calcium, and in the bodygraph this pair governs the timing of speech and action.

G Center · Defined

A fixed sense of identity, direction, and love. A consistent orientation in life regardless of environment.

Not-Self question: Are love and a direction being hunted from the outside? The open G borrows an identity from whoever is present and mistakes the searching itself for a destination.

Biology: The liver and the blood. The liver processes nutrients and regulates what the blood carries, and in the bodygraph it holds identity, direction, and love.

Heart · Open

Inconsistent willpower. Learns there is nothing to prove and avoids overcommitting to win approval.

Not-Self question: Is there something to prove here? The open Heart overcommits and makes promises that inconsistent willpower cannot keep, then reads the broken promise as proof of low worth.

Biology: The heart, stomach, gallbladder, and thymus gland. This cluster drives circulation, digestion, and immune maturation, and in the bodygraph it fuels willpower and the pursuit of value.

Sacral · Open

No consistent access to work energy. Learns when enough is enough rather than driving to exhaustion.

Not-Self question: Is enough ever enough? The open Sacral amplifies life force that is not its own and keeps working past its limit until exhaustion finally forces the stop.

Biology: The ovaries and the testes. These gonads produce the sex hormones behind fertility and vitality, and in the bodygraph they supply the life force that powers work.

Solar Plexus · Defined

An emotional wave that moves through highs and lows over time. Clarity arrives through the wave, never in the moment.

Not-Self question: Is the truth being avoided in order to keep the peace? The open Solar Plexus absorbs and magnifies the emotion in the room, then dodges confrontation to make the discomfort stop.

Biology: The kidneys, the pancreas, and the nervous system. These regulate fluid balance, blood sugar, and nerve signaling, and in the bodygraph they carry the chemistry of the emotional wave.

Spleen · Open

Heightened sensitivity to wellbeing and fear. Learns to trust intuition without clinging to what feels unsafe.

Not-Self question: Is something unhealthy being held on to out of fear? The open Spleen clings to people, work, and habits well past their time, because letting go registers as a threat to survival.

Biology: The spleen, the lymphatic system, and immune function. They filter the blood and mount the immune response, and in the bodygraph this is the oldest awareness, tracking health, timing, and survival.

Root · Defined

A consistent way of handling pressure and stress. A steady drive to get things done and move forward.

Not-Self question: Is this hurry an attempt to be free of pressure? The open Root rushes to finish in order to escape a pressure it amplified from others, and the relief it is chasing never arrives.

Biology: The adrenal glands. They secrete adrenaline and cortisol to drive the stress response, and in the bodygraph they supply the pressure and the fuel to get things moving.

Channels

CHANNEL	NAME	CIRCUIT	CENTERS
7-31	The Alpha	Collective	G Center and Throat
41-30	Recognition	Collective	Root and Solar Plexus

Channel readings

7-31 · The Alpha

Direction held in the G Center reaches the Throat as the voice of leadership. The authority is granted rather than taken, so the guidance only works once the group has chosen to be led.

41-30 · Recognition

Root contraction concentrates desire in the Solar Plexus. Fantasy about an experience not yet had provides the fuel that starts the whole collective cycle of experience.

Circuits

Collective

Sharing for the species, carried by 14 channels. Pattern and experience are worked into something transmissible: the logical half tests patterns and projects them forward, the abstract half harvests wisdom from experience already lived.

Incarnation cross

Right Angle Cross of Maya 2

Angle: Right Angle · Gates: 62, 61, 42, 32

A memory for small facts and a compulsion to share them. The detail is a real contribution to work that depends on precision, and a burden to a listener who did not ask for it.

Gate readings

Sun · Personality · 62.3 · Detail

The throat gate that names things. It sorts facts, labels, and details into practical language, giving the opinions of gate 17 something concrete to stand on.

Facts stated, corrected, and stated again. Every detail that turned out wrong sharpens the next one, and boredom with the small thing is what causes the miss.

Earth · Personality · 61.3 · Mystery

Head pressure to know the unknowable. Inspiration arrives as a why with no answer attached, and the design is to sit with the question rather than solve it.

The unknowable is approached again and again, and most approaches fail. What is learned is that inner truth cannot be carried alone and cannot be argued into anyone.

Moon · Personality · 42.6 · Growth

Sacral energy for carrying a cycle through to completion. Endings are the difficult part, and cycles left unfinished are where this gate leaks its power.

Wisdom that has seen enough cycles through to guide other people across theirs. Withholding what those completions taught is the one way this gate wastes them.

North Node · Personality · 41.6 · Contraction

Root pressure that starts the experiential cycle. Energy contracts into a hunger for a feeling not yet had, which is the fantasy gate 30 then sets out to pursue.

Wisdom in which the feeling pursued to its end spills over to everyone nearby. Guarding that breakthrough as a private advantage is the one thing that keeps it from carrying.

South Node · Personality · 31.6 · Leading

The voice that says I lead. Democratic by nature, so the leadership is real only when the group recognizes it, and only when it carries the direction of gate 7 behind it.

Influence is carried by the life rather than the argument. Intellectual comment changes nothing, so the example becomes the teaching and dogma is the one thing to avoid.

Mercury · Personality · 31.6 · Leading

The voice that says I lead. Democratic by nature, so the leadership is real only when the group recognizes it, and only when it carries the direction of gate 7 behind it.

Influence is carried by the life rather than the argument. Intellectual comment changes nothing, so the example becomes the teaching and dogma is the one thing to avoid.

Venus · Personality · 12.3 · Caution

The throat gate of moody, articulate expression. Standing between the emotional wave and the voice, it can speak with rare artistry when the mood is right and does better staying silent when it is not.

The voice finds itself by admitting what is inadequate in it, and the honesty is genuinely purging. Left to run, the same process turns into self-recrimination that nothing can talk down.

Mars · Personality · 27.1 · Caring

Sacral energy for nourishing and protecting others. It is tribal, aimed at family and group rather than at humanity, and without limits it turns into overextension.

Care begins with the body that provides it. Putting the needs of others first without a foundation of self nourishment is the fastest route to being taken for granted.

Jupiter · Personality · 62.2 · Detail

The throat gate that names things. It sorts facts, labels, and details into practical language, giving the opinions of gate 17 something concrete to stand on.

A natural gift for the exact word. The naming costs nothing when it is asked for, and being bound to inherited terminology is what makes this line restless.

Saturn · Personality · 61.2 · Mystery

Head pressure to know the unknowable. Inspiration arrives as a why with no answer attached, and the design is to sit with the question rather than solve it.

Inspiration that arrives unbidden and lands whole. The brilliance is genuine when it is drawn out, and it sours the moment it starts working for recognition.

Uranus · Personality · 58.4 · Vitality

Root energy pushing for joy and improvement. The zest for life is the fuel behind correction, and when it is blocked the vitality sours into bitterness.

Vitality aimed at what the network wants corrected. It can pick the single influence worth backing, and it drains itself trying to back all of them at once.

Neptune · Personality · 38.4 · The Fighter

Root pressure to fight for what has meaning. The struggle itself is the design, but it only builds wisdom when the cause is genuinely worth it, otherwise it becomes opposition for its own sake.

The fight strengthened by knowing exactly who in the circle can be trusted with it. Aggression that skips the investigation destroys the very trust the struggle depends on.

Pluto · Personality · 1.2 · Self Expression

Creative individuality looking for form. Sitting in the G center, it supplies the raw originality that gate 8 carries to the throat, where it becomes a contribution others can see.

A natural creative beauty that others notice and reach for. The work stays true while it follows its own values, and it distorts when ambition or appetite is loaded onto it.

Sun · Design · 42.5 · Growth

Sacral energy for carrying a cycle through to completion. Endings are the difficult part, and cycles left unfinished are where this gate leaks its power.

Others come to rely on the growth this gate produces, and influence follows the completion rather than being pursued. Turned entirely inward it becomes growth nobody else can reach.

Earth · Design · 32.5 · Continuity

Instinctive judgment of what holds lasting value and what will fail. The fear of failure is the engine, which makes this gate conservative about which transformations deserve support.

Stability is expected here and the need for security is projected onto it. Impatience with the pace of change makes it inventive, and sometimes it forces what should have ripened.

Moon · Design · 26.4 · The Egoist

Willpower used to sell, persuade, and transmit. It compresses memory and experience into a pitch, and the integrity of this gate rests entirely on whether that pitch is true.

The persuasive gift moves almost anything through the network. That is exactly why what is being sold has to be honorable, since the same skill sells the worthless.

North Node · Design · 13.1 · The Listener

The receiver of the secrets and stories of others. Sitting in the G center, it gathers the past of the collective and passes it to gate 33 to be retold as wisdom.

People confide here because the listening carries affection rather than judgment. The foundation is genuine openness, and it draws in far more of the past than was ever asked for.

South Node · Design · 7.1 · The Role of the Self

Direction offered in service of leadership. Sitting in the G center, it holds the way forward that the voice of gate 31 speaks, and it works best beside the leader rather than in front.

The foundation of leadership is a firm hand and a settled rule, which steadies a group that cannot steady itself. It curdles into an intellect convinced that only it can possibly know best.

Mercury · Design · 2.2 · The Direction of the Self

The receptive keeper of direction. Sitting in the G center, it knows where life should go but holds no fuel for the journey, so it draws on the sacral power of gate 14 to move.

A natural alignment with the right direction that cannot be explained from inside and is obvious from outside. It curdles when the praise is believed and the knowing is claimed as an achievement.

Venus · Design · 37.4 · Friendship

The emotional warmth that holds a family or a community together. Bargains, roles, and loyalty are its currency, and it needs the will of gate 40 to keep those bargains honest.

Influence in the family earned by conduct rather than title. The network follows the example set here, unless deference to tradition blinds it to who is genuinely leading.

Mars · Design · 30.2 · Feelings

The emotional fire of desire and expectation. Sitting in the solar plexus, it burns to have the experience it imagines, and the experience rarely arrives shaped like the fantasy.

The middle of the wave is found naturally. Extremes of feeling are moderated without being suppressed, and expression stays measured while the fire underneath keeps burning.

Jupiter · Design · 52.1 · Stillness

Root pressure to be still. The inaction is not laziness. It is the stillness that turns the focus of gate 9 into sustained concentration.

Stillness is grounded by understanding why it is needed. Root pressure is held rather than discharged, and the pause is what turns raw focus into something that can be sustained.

Saturn · Design · 61.5 · Mystery

Head pressure to know the unknowable. Inspiration arrives as a why with no answer attached, and the design is to sit with the question rather than solve it.

Others project revelation onto this line. Its inspiration can reach a generation, and demanding that the insight be accepted turns a wisdom figure into a preacher.

Uranus · Design · 38.1 · The Fighter

Root pressure to fight for what has meaning. The struggle itself is the design, but it only builds wisdom when the cause is genuinely worth it, otherwise it becomes opposition for its own sake.

Foundation: knowing which fight is worth the adrenaline before entering it. Struggle chosen by instinct builds meaning, and struggle entered as a reflex simply burns the energy.

Neptune · Design · 38.6 · The Fighter

Root pressure to fight for what has meaning. The struggle itself is the design, but it only builds wisdom when the cause is genuinely worth it, otherwise it becomes opposition for its own sake.

Wisdom that much of the opposition was never real, only a misunderstanding held in place by both sides. What resolves it is dropping the certainty that the error belonged to the other.

Pluto · Design · 1.4 · Self Expression

Creative individuality looking for form. Sitting in the G center, it supplies the raw originality that gate 8 carries to the throat, where it becomes a contribution others can see.

Creativity that needs solitude to mature, since influence dilutes it. Gate 8 offers the outlet, but the work has to be finished away from the audience before it is carried there.

Planets

Sun

The dominant activation. With the Earth it carries roughly 70 percent of the imprint on the chart. The Personality Sun gate is the conscious life theme, the Design Sun is the radiance the body broadcasts before a word is spoken.

Earth

Always the wheel-opposite of the Sun, so it is derived rather than observed. It grounds whatever the Sun expresses, and the two Suns plus the two Earths fix the four gates of the incarnation cross.

Moon

The fastest body on the wheel, crossing it in about 28 days. It carries drive and the ongoing motion of the form, and it sets the timing for Lunar authority, which needs a full cycle before clarity arrives.

North Node

Geometry rather than personality. It marks the direction life turns toward in the second half, after the midlife transition, and on the Design side it names the environment in which the form is seen correctly.

South Node

The familiar geometry of the first half of life, the ground the person operates from before the midlife turn. On the Design side it names the environment the body already knows and returns to by default.

Mercury

The communication imprint. The Personality Mercury gate is the message the person is here to deliver, the Design Mercury gate is how that expression actually sounds to everyone else.

Venus

Values and the moral floor under behavior. Personality Venus is what is consciously held dear, Design Venus is the standard the body applies without ever being consulted.

Mars

Immature energy: raw drive that has not yet learned its own timing. It shows where action gets forced before it is ripe, and it only matures when strategy and authority are running the decision.

Jupiter
Expansion, and the law that rewards living correctly. Personality Jupiter marks where growth and abundance gather, Design Jupiter marks the protection the form receives while it stays aligned.

Saturn
Discipline through restriction, the corrective imprint. It is where consequences arrive when the design is not honored, and its returns near ages 29 and 58 are when that account gets settled.

Uranus
The unusual and the abrupt. It carries individuality and unexpected change, and its opposition near age 40 is the midlife pressure to live as oneself instead of as the conditioning.

Neptune
The veil. It carries spiritual perception and the capacity for illusion in equal measure, so whatever it activates is rarely seen plainly, by the person or by anyone watching.

Pluto
Truth through transformation. It exposes what was hidden and forces the psychological change that follows, working generationally and slowly rather than personally and quickly.

Variables

ARROW	POSITION	COLOR	TONE	BASE	DIRECTION
Determination	Top left	3 Thirst	6	1 Reactive	Passive
Environment	Bottom left	1 Caves	4	4 Progressive	Observer
Perspective	Bottom right	5 Probability	2	4 Progressive	Focused
Motivation	Top right	3 Desire	1	2 Integrative	Strategic

Variable readings

The finest substructure layer: one of five facets of the Personality Crystal, and the entry point for the imprint Tone and Color build on. Fixed across incarnation, and finer than any civil birth time resolves, so it is informational only.

Determination

Layer: Primary Health System · Activation: Sun · Design · Cognition: Touch · Confidence: Near a boundary, a more precise birth time could change it

The top left arrow, fed by the design Sun and Earth. It describes how the body is built to take in and break down nourishment, sensation, and information, and it sets the cognitive potential that rests on that intake.

Thirst. Intake governed by temperature and fluid. How hot or cold food and drink arrive decides how well the body extracts from them, and liquids sit easier than heavy solid mass.

Acceptance. Things are met as they are and weighed for whether they are correct, rather than corrected. Awareness takes in the whole and lets it be what it is.

Passive. Intake is stored rather than filtered. The body carries a large open capacity for taking things in, and works best when the right conditions are allowed to arrive rather than engineered.

Touch. Recognition through physical contact. Handling a thing, or being in contact with a surface or a person, is what makes it knowable and settles the body.

Environment

Layer: Primary Health System · Activation: North Node · Design

The bottom left arrow, fed by the design Nodes. It describes the physical setting in which the body meets least resistance, relaxes, and orients. It is the ground the mind-side arrows depend on.

Caves. Enclosure and controlled access. The body settles where it is contained and can regulate what comes in, such as a private room, a defined corner, or a seat with the back to a wall.

Meditation. Clarity comes from stillness and from sustained focus on one thing. Awareness settles inward, waits, and lets an impression form rather than reaching out for it.

Observer. The body is nourished by taking the setting in from its own vantage point, relaxed and surveying, without needing to be at the center of it.

Perspective

Layer: Rave Psychology · Activation: North Node · Personality

The bottom right arrow, fed by the personality Nodes. Also called View, it describes the structure through which the mind is angled to see, framing what awareness notices before any thought forms.

Probability. The mind weighs how a thing is most likely to unfold. This is not open-ended speculation but an estimate of the odds on something already taken as possible.

Uncertainty. An unease with things as they stand, which keeps awareness attuned to what is new. This is the tone that recognizes mutation the moment it appears, before it can be named.

Focused. Awareness narrows and aims, picking out what is central, specific, and sharply relevant, and leaving the surrounding field out of frame.

Motivation

Layer: Rave Psychology · Activation: Sun · Personality

The top right arrow, fed by the personality Sun and Earth. It describes the quality that colors mental awareness, the underlying reason the mind engages at all, and it reads true only once the body and the view are settled.

Desire. Awareness is motivated by what it wants and by what strikes it as worth pursuing. Owning that pull, rather than apologizing for it, is what points at the correct work.

Security. The tonal architecture rests on a baseline of safety. What is sound, familiar, and survivable registers first, and everything built above it stands on that footing.

Strategic. The mind is directed and targeted, moving toward what motivates it and organizing awareness around that aim in advance.

Variable layers

Primary Health System
The body-side half of Variable, covering the Determination and Environment arrows. It addresses the form: the conditions under which the vehicle digests nourishment, and the place in which it meets least resistance.

Rave Psychology
The mind-side half of Variable, covering the Perspective and Motivation arrows. It addresses awareness: how the mind is built to see and what colors that seeing, along with the false resonance of Distraction and Transference.
